Call for Papers
Brehm Colloquium
November 10, 2016
Geneva Room

It is a pleasure to invite you to the 2016 Brehm Colloquium. The colloquium is organized by Fuller Theological Seminary’s Brehm Center for Worship, Theology, and the Arts, along with the schools of Theology, Psychology, and Intercultural Studies. It will take place in Pasadena, CA on November 10, 2016, in the Geneva Room.

Who we are.
The Brehm Center is a Christ-centered, spiritually nurturing community that guides and resources leaders to care for culture, explore and express their calling, and creatively integrate worship, theology, and the arts.

Objectives of the colloquium.
The Brehm Colloquium is a yearly event designed to provide Fuller students an opportunity to present their current research, become practiced at conference presentations, and receive faculty and peer feedback on their work. It is open to any Fuller student or alumnus/a whose work (whether theological, psychological, or intercultural) engages culture, the arts, and/or worship.

Committee.
Submissions will be reviewed by the Brehm Colloquium Steering Committee, which includes a selection of faculty from SOT, SIS, and SOP.

Call
In order to allow room for the great diversity of research that Fuller student’s represent, there is no set theme for the Colloquium. However, special consideration will be given to presentations that engage the psychological sciences or contextual theologies (Latinoa/a, Black, feminist/womanist).

Submission Guidelines
• Please submit an abstract (approx. 300 words) of your presentation by September 1, 2016.
• Presentations will be 10-15 minutes in length
• If you have any special format needs (e.g. a performance piece, or visual art), it would be a good idea to provide as much information as possible on how to submit to these.
• Format: please adhere to the Turabian/Chicago Documentation Style.
